College of Criminal Justice Assistant/Associate Professor Forensic Science

The College of Criminal Justice is conducting a search for a forensic science faculty position within the FEPAC-accredited Master of Science in Forensic Science (MSFS) Program. Candidates are expected to be dedicated teachers, productive researchers, and professionals prepared to become actively engaged in the diverse programs administered by the College of Criminal Justice.

A successful candidate must be able to develop and teach graduate-level courses in mainstream forensic chemistry or physical science disciplines, pursue a sustained research agenda, supervise graduate student research and actively participate in the continuous development of forensic science programming at SHSU. Candidates for this tenure-track faculty position should have a doctoral degree in a forensic science specialty, criminalistics, chemistry, biology or a related natural science. Although not required, candidates with experience in an applied forensic science setting are encouraged to apply.

The College provides faculty members with exceptional research opportunities through its research centers and advanced training institutes as well as access to outstanding resources to support their professional development. The Chronicle of Higher Education recently listed Sam Houston State University among its “2011 Great Colleges to Work For.”

To ensure full consideration, applications should include a letter of interest, a current vita, and the names and contact information for a minimum of three references addressed to: Dr. Sarah Kerrigan, Chair, Search Committee; College of Criminal Justice Forensic Science Program, Sam Houston State University; Box 2525; Huntsville, Texas 77341-2525, sarah.kerrigan@shsu.edu

Review of applications will begin January 15, 2013 and will continue until the position is filled.
